

A charade written by Jane's
brother Frank Austen:

By my first you may travel
with safety and speed,
Though many dislike
the conveyance indeed;
My second no woman can well
be.

My whole takes a change
several times in a year;
Hot and cold, wet and dry,
benignant, severe.

What am I, fair lady, pray tell me?