

Dear Jane

I rent a bakehouse in your house. Thank you for a very nice place. Originally, this is a place to cook the food that people eat, but I make strange noises and draw a line like the scene of an incident. Installing my work here seems to strengthen the title of "consist". Language consists of the inner things of people, and diet consists of the body. I think bakehouse is iconic of a makeup place.

The artwork subject matter of this project is influenced by implicit bias. From the times of your living era to the present, people still have both dreams and nightmares about the classification, stereotypes and cultural backgrounds of bias for individuals who build complex relationships. This time, I wanted to search the focus on how people make up the "individual", which is the pre-stage of that complex relationship, but It already involved words from the outside. This is closely related to the complex connections of people, like your the romance of characters as the subject in the novel.

I hope you will say "That's outdated!" when you read this letter and art work decades later.
